

Child mental health services at risk in four communities over hours of work dispute.

Workers at Sudbury Child and Family Centre, Centre De L'enfant et de la Famille Ngodweangizwin Aaskaagewin, could be in a strike/lockout position on Nov. 21.

Members of OPSEU Local 666 have been in negotiations for a new contract since May 3, 2011. On Nov. 2 talks broke down in conciliation, and the clock is now counting down towards a strike.

The 83 full-time, part-time, and casual staff provide mental health services to over 2,300 children and their families in Sudbury, Espanola, Chapleau, and Manitoulin.

Child mental health services at risk in four communities over hours of work dispute.

Workers at Sudbury Child and Family Centre, Centre De L'enfant et de la Famille Ngodweangizwin Aaskaagewin, could be in a strike/lockout position on Nov. 21.

Members of OPSEU Local 666 have been in negotiations for a new contract since May 3, 2011. On Nov. 2 talks broke down in conciliation, and the clock is now counting down towards a strike.

The 83 full-time, part-time, and casual staff provide mental health services to over 2,300 children and their families in Sudbury, Espanola, Chapleau, and Manitoulin.

STOP the attack on children's mental health services.

The employer wants to impose evening and weekend work.

We already work flexible hours that include evening and weekend work on a voluntary basis. We want to protect our work-life balance as this helps us to deliver the quality services we are so proud of.

The employer has managed the agency deficit on the back of workers and clients for years. We have taken unpaid time off; we have been temporarily laid off; vacancies have remained unfilled to save money; staff positions have been eliminated. We will not bargain concessions that further erode our pay, make our jobs less secure and jeopardize client service.

Reducing waiting lists for children's mental health services should be the priority! On Nov. 21 we will be in a strike position unless Bertrand Guindon, Acting Director, recognizes that improving working conditions is about strengthening the services that we provide.

TELL BERTRAND GUINDON TO STOP jeopardizing children's mental health services.

Tell him to bargain a fair deal with workers at Sudbury Child and Family Centre, Centre De L'enfant et de la Famille Ngodweangizwin Aaskaagewin!

(705)525-1008, ext. 2511 • bguindon@childandfamilycentre.on.ca

STOP the attack on children's mental health services.

The employer wants to impose evening and weekend work.

We already work flexible hours that include evening and weekend work on a voluntary basis. We want to protect our work-life balance as this helps us to deliver the quality services we are so proud of.

The employer has managed the agency deficit on the back of workers and clients for years. We have taken unpaid time off; we have been temporarily laid off; vacancies have remained unfilled to save money; staff positions have been eliminated. We will not bargain concessions that further erode our pay, make our jobs less secure and jeopardize client service.

Reducing waiting lists for children's mental health services should be the priority! On Nov. 21 we will be in a strike position unless Bertrand Guindon, Acting Director, recognizes that improving working conditions is about strengthening the services that we provide.

TELL BERTRAND GUINDON TO STOP jeopardizing children's mental health services.

Tell him to bargain a fair deal with workers at Sudbury Child and Family Centre, Centre De L'enfant et de la Famille Ngodweangizwin Aaskaagewin!

(705)525-1008, ext. 2511 • bguindon@childandfamilycentre.on.ca